JUDGE ASKS JURY TO PROBE DIVORCE CASES

Explains to Grand Jury Its Powers of Investigation

28 CRIMINAL CASES

Jury Takes up Criminal Docket—To Investigate Divorce Situation After Bar Association Reports.

In reference to the divorce situation here, Judge Robinson Moncure today delivered a charge of the Grand Jury which will later take up this matter after disposing of the 28 criminal case it is considering. The judge, among other things, told the jury that the divorce situation will be presented to them next week following a complete and final report of the Bar Association, engaged in the task of investigating divorce conditions here. He asked the jury to investigate the divorce situation thoroughly.

He informed the Grand Jury that it has full power to have witnesses summoned, and that the powers of the court were at its disposal to compel answers except insofar as it might incriminate a witness. He told the Grand Jury to let him know the names of any party or parties they wanted summoned, and the powers of the court were at their disposal and that should any witness refuse to testify, to report the matter to the court, and the witness would be punished. The court also told the Grand Jury that in the divorce investigation it thought among the most valuable witnesses were the members of the subcommittee of the Bar Association, namely, Major J. Randall Caton, Howard W. Smith and Captain C. Keith Carlin.

The court also called the attention of the Grand Jury to the distinction between residence and domicile, and directed their attention to the four Virginia cases of Steckel against Steckel, Towson against Towson and the tax case of Cooper, and Williams effecting his right to a seat in the City Council.

The court also called attention to the rules that had been adopted at the request of the Bar Association committee and recommended that a list of the persons appearing often as a resident witness should be kept by the clerk of the court, and that in such cases the hearings as to residence, at least, should be held in open court.

The jury was also informed that it was their duty and right to investigate any person and to place the charges, blame or criticism wherever and on whomsoever they thought proper, but that in order to indict or present a particular individual that there must be more than mere generalities and particular and specific charges must be supported by enough evidence of a legitimate, respectable nature, to lead them to the conclusion that the party should be placed on trial.

The judge also called the attention of the Grand Jury to the fact that libel is an inditable crime at common law in Virginia; also any perjury committed by anyone or by witness before the Grand Jury, and that in connection with the divorce situation it was their right and within their power to consider if the crime libel had been committed by anyone, and if so, by whom.

In conclusion the judge told the Grand Jury that it was their prerogative to file a report upon the situation and make recommendations, and that he thought that body was the most proper tribunal for the purpose, and he would be pleased to have any recommendations from them.

The judge in his opening gave the usual charge regarding the duty of the grand jury to investigate other volations of the law.

The jury afterward repaired to the jury room and began the investigation of the 28 criminal cases presented, among which is one for murder, one for involuntary manslaughter, 25 for alleged infractions of the State prohibiton law and two for grand larceny. This is the biggest docket in recent years. The jury probably will not finish its investigation of the criminal cases till late this afternoon.

The charge of murder is against Ernest Lloyd, alias "Mutt" Grooms, colored, charged with fatally shooting Herbert McGray, colored, which occurred at the southwest corner of Cameron and Fayette streets the morning of December 29.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, March 17.—Business throughout the country will not be affected by the strike of the bituminous miners, scheduled to begin April 1.

This was the information given out here today by a member of President Harding's Cabinet, who has been in close touch with conditions in all sections of the country. It was further declared that a coal strike will find the railroads of the country stoked up with reserve supplies of coal, which they have been accumulating for many days in anticipation of a strike among the bituminous miners. This supply now on hand will last the transportation companies from 36 to 60 days at least.

In addition to this supply, it was pointed out that the nonunion mines throughout the country, especially the fields in West Virginia, which are tapped by the Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio railroads, will be kept going at top speed and will be able to supply half the normal quantity of coal used by the big industries throughout the country.

There is no intention of the Government to interfere in any way, even if a strike is called, it was said by this Cabinet member. Past experience has shown that coal strikes, after they have been in progress for any length of time, are usually settled on the motion of either the operators or miners, and it was said that with the railroads moving and industries not interfered with, that there would be no reason for the Government to take any hand in the situation.

The United States Veterans' Bureau Vocational School at Chillecothe, Ohio, has announced the graduation of its first disabled veteran. Charles Dayhuff, of Patricksburg, Ind., was rehabitated as laundry manager, and tomorrow will take charge of the laundry of the Ohio State Reformatory. Dayhuff saw 16 months overseas service and was in the Meuse-Argonne, St. Mihiel, second battle of the Marne, Belleau Woods, and Chateau Thierry attacks. He was badly gassed at Chateau Thierry, and was declared 20 per cent disabled. When the Veterans' Bureau opened the vocational school at Chillecothe, Dayhuff was one of the initial students.

Hereafter when the President of the United States gives a state dinner, reception or other public function at the White House he will not be compelled to defray the expenses of such entertainment out of his own pocket. The Senate Committee on Appropriations, in making provision for the expenses of the White House and the President's salary, has put in an amendment to that part of the bill which allows the Chief Executive $25,000 a year for traveling expenses, providing that any part of this sum may be used in defraying the expenses of official entertainments. The dinners which the President is compelled to give to members of the Diplomatic Corps, the Judiciary, Congress, and to distinguished foreign visitors, are always costly affairs, but up to the present time he has been compelled to meet the expenses thus entailed out of his personal account. Congress has never before made any provision for the paymentof such official functions carried on by the occupant of the White House.

It is the intention of the Department of Commerce to send a party, headed by Assistant Secretary Huston, to Alaska this summer for the purpose of making a general investigation of conditions in which that department is particularly interested. Particular attention will be devoted during this trip of inspection to the salmon fisheries of the territory, which yield products of an average annual value of about $40,000,000, and in normal seasons give employment to upwards of 20,000 persons, and represent an investment of about $70,000,000.

It will be the purpose, also, to observe conditions in respect to the fur seal industry at the Pribilof Islands, which work is administered by the Department of Commerce through the Bureau of Fisheries. The American fur seal herd resorts to seals are killed there and the pelts subsequently disposed of for the account of the Government. In the season of 1921 there were taken 23,671 sealskins from the herd, which numbered 581,453 animals. The annual censuses of the herd show a satisfactory growth each year, the net increase being 5 per cent after deducting those killed.

The skins are dressed, dyed and machined, and sold at public auction through the department's selling agents at St. Louis, and the proceeds are covered into the treasury of the United States. On the average sealskins yield the Government from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 annually. The Government also engaged in foxing operations on the Pribilof Islands, the take averaging about 1,000 blue skins each year, which net about $100,000.

WAR SECRETARY WARNS AGAINST CUTTING ARMY

Says Reduction of Force Means Abandonment of 100 Posts

PROPOSAL UNWISE

President Harding Changes His Plans And Will Remain in Florida Until Tomorrow.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 17.—John W. Weeks, secretary of war and a member of the President's vacation party, gave notice yesterday to the House and Senate that if the personnel of the army is to be cut as is proposed in the House, then the military "overhead" also must be reduced to a corresponding degree, even though this means the abandonment of 100 or more army posts and other military reservations.

The secretary, upon his return to Washington, expects to go before the Senate Military Affairs Committee and to issue his warning directly to those members of Congress whose districts and States will lose their military communities.

Secretary Weeks made all this very clear upon receipt of advices by the President and his party from Washington to the effect that the House Appropriations Committee, disregarding the Administration's recommendations, had reported a bill carrying $270,353,030 and providing for a reduction in the enlisted personnel to 115,000 men and of commissioned personnel to 11,000 officers.

Commenting further, Mr. Weeks insisted that the committee's action was unwise. He feels strongly that the army should be maintained at its present strength of 137,000 enlisted mene, although there is an authorized strength of 150,000 men. It is the conviction of every one of Mr. Weeks' military advisers that the danger point is reached when the army is reduced below its present force.

"Reduction of the personnel is especially unwise unless the overhead expense of the army is cut in at least the same ratio," Secretary Weeks declared this afternoon. "It costs about $2,000 per men per year, as against about $1,000 before the war. I do not know what the present bill contains in detail, but so far as I am informed it does nothing in reducing overhead expenses such as maintenance and repair requirements at many posts which may well be abandoned.

"Constant requests come to the War Department for renewal of equipment and buildings at the posts. When I am in Washington, and it is continued by another when I am away, no expenditure of over $500 or more is permitted unless it goes through my hands personally."

The President's vacation party will begin to break up tomorrow, when Speaker of the House Gillett leaves for Washington to confer with House leaders upon the parliamentary consideration of the bonus bill.

POPE PIUS MAY LEAVE VATICAN FOR PARADE

Expected to Take Prominent Part in Procession Next May

TO BREAK PRECEDENT

Pope May be Carried in Portable Throne Used Only on Occasions of State

Rome, March 17.—It is probable, says the Giornale d'Italia, that Pope Pius will come out of the Vatican to take part in the procession from St. Peter's to the Church of San Giovanni, in Laterno, on the occasion of the eucharistic congress next May. The newspaper attributes the prediction to one of the Vatican monsignori whom it interviewed.

According to the Vatican official, the pope may be carried in the procession in the sedia gestatoria, or portable throne, used on occasions of state.

This would break a precedent established at the time of the papal loss of temporal power, since which no pope has gone outside the Vatican. It would not, however, according to the authority quoted, mean a change in the attitude of the holy see toward the Italian government.

INQUIRY WILL END TOMORROW

Final Arguments in Divorce Probe to Close Hearing

Committee Will Submit its Report to Bar Association

Arguments will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the corporation court room before the special committee of seven of the Alexandria Bar Association engaged in the probing of the divorce situation here, Attorney John S. Barbour, of Fairfax county, representing Judge Robinson Moncure will argue and Attorney Frank Stuart also is slated to make an argument.

It is expected that be arguments probably will be completed early in the afternoon. This will bring the committee's investigation to a close. The committee will subsequently formulate its report. The report is to be submitted to the Alexandria Bar Association for ratification, and it is expected that the report will be ready for the association early next week. This will end the divorce inquiry so far as the bar association is conerned.

To Improve 19 Squares

Nineteen instead of twenty-one squares are soon to be improved by the city. The streets to be improved are Prince and Duke from Royal to Henry streets and Washington from Duke to Franklin and Pitt from Prince to Duke streets. Through an error it was stated that it was proposed to improve Duke street and Prince streets from Royal to Fayette instead of from Royal to Henry streets, a distance of one square more on each thoroughfare than originally planned.

Congress Plans to Cut Down Standing Army In This Manner

30,000 CIVILIANS

Will Encourage Training Camps, School and College Reserve Corps and National Guard Organizations.

Washington, March 17.—America's civilian army is to be built up; the regular army cut down.

Great potential fighting strength, rather than small actual fighting strength, is the aim of Congress as reflected in the $270,000,000 army bill drafted by the House Appropriations Committee and now before the lower branch of Congress for passage.

Civilian and reserve officers' training camps, cadet corps in colleges and in high schools, and the national guard all are to be encouraged as "civilian soldiers" forces, which might be brought into play in case of war.

It is the judgment of the commitee and it is confidently expected it will be the judgment of Congress, that it is better to train a large number of American young men in the rudiments of military instruction than to keep a highly trained regular force, which would be inadequate in size in case of national emergency.

Thirty thousand young men will be trained in the "summer Plattsburgs" this year, according to the plans of the House Appropriations Committee. This will be three times as large as that trained during the last summer. Instead of a few civilian training camps, each with several thousand trainers, it is planned this year to have a larger number of camps scattered throughout the country to cut down the cost of transportation.

After telling of the plans of the committee to cut the regular army from its present strength of 150,000 ment to 115,000 men during the next fiscal year, Representative Anthony, of Kansas, chairman of the military subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, told of the provisions in the pending army bill for encouraging civilian military activities.

"The Reserve Officers' Training Corps is doing a splendid work," he said to the House of Representatives. "They are training at the schools and colleges approximately 112,000 young men—45,000 in the high schools and 60,000 in the units at colleges. Last year we appropriated $2,850,000, and this year we are giving them $2,750,000. But we also are providing them with uniforms, which augments the appropriate half a million dollars.

In regard to the civilian military training camps, I will say that the appropriation for the current year was $900,000. We trained 10,000 in the summer camps with that money. This year we are providing $1,900,000 for that work, under which we feel the department will be able to train 25,000 men in the summer camps."

FORDNEY WILL CALL CAUCUS ON BONUS BILL

Committee Chairman Secures Necessary Names For Meeting Tuesday

COST $4,098,719,350

Matter of Taking up Bonus Measure Monday Will be Decided at Informal Session Today

Washington, March 17.—There were just two developments yesterday in the soldiers' bonus muddle. One was the filing by Chairman Fordney, of the Ways and Means Committee, of the majority report on the compromise bill, which was estimated to cost the Government a total of $4,098,719,350. The other was the circulation of a petition by Representative Lineberger, of California, a former service man, for a conference of House Republicans for next Tuesday evening to discuss the bonus legislation.

Mr. Lineberger announced last night that there were 60 signatures to the petition, or 10 more than the number required under the rules for a conference call. He said, however, that he hoped it would not be necessary to present the petition to Representative Towner, chairman of the Republican House organization. Its presentation, he added, would depend upon the outcome of the conference between House leaders and Speaker Gillett regarding procedure for the calling up of the bill on the floor.

If there is a decision at that conference to consider the bill under a suspension of the rules, Mr. Lineberger said the petition would be presented. There was some speculation as to whether a formal conference call would operate to delay consideration of the legislation. Chairman Fordney declared emphatically that it still was his determination to bring the bill up Monday under a suspension of the rules if that could be done, and if not, to call it up Tuesday under a special rule, if such a rule could be obtained.

Speaker Gillett is due to arrive here today from Florida, one day ahead of the original schedule, and at tht time the question of whether the bill will be taken up Monday probably will be settled. Mr. Fordney said the conference with the Speaker would be in "perfect harmony," and that if Mr. Gillett held against a suspension of the rules he would proceed with plans to bring the measure up under a special rule.

The chairman went on to say that it was not his desire to limit debate; that if the measure were taken up under a suspension of the rules he would ask unanimous consent for two days of discussion, which would throw the final vote over until late Tuesday. Should his request be denied, debate would be limited to 40 minutes under the House rules.

ROD & GUN CLUB ELECTS

Seek to Have River Restocked With Bass

Co-Operation is Promised Club by Commissioner of Fisheries

The Alexandria Rod and Gun Club at a meeting held last night in the rooms of the chamber of commerce elected the following officers: H. Edwin Gentry, president; R. D. Thomas, secretary treasurer; W. S. Snow, vice president.

The club already has on its roster forty-two members and it was decided to hold meetings the third Thursday of each month. Preparations are under way for an active season on the part of this club.

An address was made by Mr. Allen, of Fredericksburg, Va., supervising game warden of the State. He outlined plans for law enforcement relative to the game laws in this section, and a communication was received from the commissioner of fisheries commending the action of the club in reference to the steps it had taken toward the enforcement of laws relative to game and fish and he promised co-operation on his part in their efforts.

The question of restocking the Potomac with bass was taken up and it was announced that arrangements will be made whereby a large number of bass will be put into the river during the next few months.

The game warden of the state will be asked to furnish this section of the state with its quota of partridges produced at the State game farm.

IN CONGRESS YESTERDAY

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:40 p. m. until noon today.

Passed and sent to the Senate a resolution under which approximately 2,400 aliens admitted temporarily to the United States prior to March 7 in excess of the 3 per cent quotas would be permitted to remain here permanently.

During debate on the measure Representative Box (Democrat), Texas, charged that certain steamship companies and alien groups were "corrupting and debauching" the immigration service, and that conditions were particularly "shocking" at the Ellis Island immigration station.

Chairman Fordney, of the Ways and Means Committee, reintroduced the soldier bonus bill as finally revised, and filed a majority report from the committee setting forth six "advantages of plan of bill."

A petition by Representative Lineberger, of California, asking for a conference of Republicans on the bonus bill next Tuesday evening was signed by 60 members, 10 more than the necessary number, and Mr Lineberger expressed the hope that it would not be necessary to present it to Chairman Towner, of the Republican House organization. Its presentation, the California member said, would depend upon the outcome of a conference to be held today between Speaker Gillett and Republican leaders.

Representatives of many organizations, appealing for amnesty for 113 prisoners serving an aggregate sentence of nearly 1,000 years, insisted before the Judiciary Committee that some of the prisoners whose sentences were commuted last Christmas should have paid the full penalty for their crimes.

Representative London (Socialist), author of the resolution under consideration, precipitated a heated discussion by announcing that if he had the power he would release all war prisoners convicted of violence because of sincere opposition to war.

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:02 p. m until 12 o'clock today.

The only speech on the treaty was made by Senator Reed (Democrat), Missouri who asserted that the whole conference program had been misrepresented to the public.

Senator Reed submitted figures which, he said, would prove that the naval and Four-Power treaties taken together would place the United States in such a relative position as to involve the gravest danger to national security.

A statement was read into the record which Senator Reed said had been prepared for him "by a high naval authority" giving the opinion that under the naval treaty the United States would be helpless in the Pacific.

Adopted the compromise conference report appropriating $1,500,000 for purchase of seed grain for the aid of farmers in the crop-failure area.

Passed the Capper bill providing for the creation in the District of Columbia of a board of accountancy.

Majority and minority reports bearing upon the eligibility of Senator Smoot and Representative Burton to act as members of the allied debt-refunding commission were filed from the Judiciary Committee, which has been considering the question, referred to it by a Senate resolution.

The irrigation committee ordered a favorable report on House bill providing for application of Federal irrigation laws to organized irrigation districts as well as to individual entrymen.

Testifying before the dye investigating committee, J. W. Newlean, president of the National Aniline and Chemical Company, said the dye embargo was necessary for the development of the organic chemical industry and also esential to general scientific and industrial development.

Randall Caton, to which Mr. Williams responded.

AID OF LABOR IS PLEDGED TO COAL MINERS

Says American Federation Members Will Support Strikers to a Man

ASSAILS OPERATORS

Labor President Says His Conclusion is That Their Promises Are Worthless.

Washington, March 17.—Bitterly assailing the mine operators, President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, asserted yesterday that organized labor to a man will support the cause of the mine workers, though he did not say whether labor would resort to the sympathetic strike to aid a miners' strike.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon views the possibility of a national coal strike as the one dark cloud on the horizon of improved business conditions, it was said at the treasury.

Should the strike of bituminous coal miners materialize, Mr. Mellon is understood to look for little difficulty resulting to industries or hardships to the general public.

Treasury officials expressed the opinion that there was nothing the Government could do to stop a strike if called for April 1, and indicated there was little probability of the Government taking over the bituminous mines unless a protracted strike developed an unexpected shortage of bituminous coal, which would work a hardship upon the general public.

"Come what may, the American Federation of Labor, the American labor movement, is with the mine workers of America in their struggle against the mine owners," said Mr. Gompers.

"The citizenship of America can draw from this conduct but one conclusion that the mine owners wish it to be understood that the pledge of mine owners is valueless."

The statement of mine owners that the representatives of the mine owners have no power to confer is baseless. The officers and the policy committee of the mine workers have full power to confer, to negotiate and to enter into an agreement. This power was officially and properly conferred upon them by the mine workers' convention.

"The mine owners are willing to break their word if by so doing they can reduce wages or weaken the union. Profits and power with the mine owners come first, and everything else, including the comfort and welfare of the public, of which they talk so much, come last.

"The whole American labor movement is with the miners. The United Mine Workers of America have an honorable record of agreements honorably kept. The industry for 20 years has been conducted upon the basis of negotiation and joint agreement.

"The mine workers have met every demand in those agreements. In addition, they have ever been subject to whim and caprice beyond any other calling or trade. They have had work for from 50 to 100 fewer days per year than most other trades and occupations.

"They have been subjected to a fluctuation of work almost unknown in any other trade. What they ask is negotiation and agreement, trusting to these truly American devices to bring improvement as time passes. The thing they want least of all is to be compelled to cease work as a final protest against the dishonor of the employers.

"The mine workers are striving to abide by their pledge. They have fulfilled every obligation and wait only the word of the employers to enter into negotiation for the continuance of mining operations."

Table Etiquette---
Artificial and Natural

CHESTERFIELD, whose precepts of politeness are forever famous, had a son who disgraced himself at public table by his boorish manners. There is a natural and a cultivated table etiquette. The natural is the true refinement which we practice without effort in surroundings that are not artificial. The informal cosiness of WALLIS dining rooms and plain, congenial fare and service relaxes and wins you. The commonsense prices have their charm for you, too.

REBUILDING THEIR SCHOOLS

But little has appeared in print regarding the heroic struggle Serbia is making for her rehabiltation. This country, which suffered so greatly during the war, is working back to normalcy largely through her own efforts. What outside aid Serbia has received has come largely from the Serbian Welfare Commission with headquarters in this country, the American Red Cross and the American Relief Association.

One of the greatest needs of Serbia schools in order to educate the children. Toward this work the Junior American Red Cross contributed $10,000 and the Welfare Commission and the Serbian people have cooperated, the Serbian Ministry of Education furnishing about two-thirds of the funds required. One hudred school buildings have thus far been repaired, or are in process of repair, and thousands of children who have been without school priviledge since the war are now being cared for.

Championship Game

Any one who may come to the Armory tonight to witness real basketball will not be disappointed in their desire, for the playing teams desire to carry out the indoor sport in glory, so say the Orioles.

The main attraction for the evening should show some clever playing for the Epiphany Jrs. (the champions of Washington, and the Orioles, Alexandria's crack junior five are staging the fracas. The Epiphany lads have won 27 and lost 1 and will bring an aggregation to town that is made up of some of Washington's cleverest players, and intend to make this their 33rd win But, our home town boys winners of 26 and only two defeats are planning to average their defeat at the hands of these boys in Washington a couple of weeks ago. It will be remembered by all that the last game in which the Orioles participated against the Park View a much heavier team, the playing was excellent, the home lads winning in the last minute of play and the game tonight should supply thrills equal to that of the foresaid game.

The Orioles team will be picked from the following players: Duffey, Hall, Nowland, Lyons, Poss, Roland and Schoeni.

In a preliminary the Virginia Preps will hook up with the Strollers, a fast girls' team from Washington.

The first game will begin promptly at 7:15 o'clock.

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND LOOSENS TEETH

The Very Next Dose of This Treacherous Drug May Start Trouble

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.

VAST PLATINUM DEPOSIT FOUND IN ALBANIA

Discovery of Field Will Minimize Importance of Soviet Holdings

LARGEST YET FOUND

Anthracite Coal Also Found by Professor Saderholm of Helsingfors University, Famous Geologist.

Washington, March 17.—Discovery of vast deposits of platinum in Albania was announced yesterday by Constantine A. Chekrezi, commisisoner from Albania to the United States.

The announcement, which was contained in a letter to H. Foster Bain, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, said the platinum had been unearthed several weeks ago by Professor Haderholm, of the University of Helsingfors, who was in Albania on a mission for the League of Nations.

Plantinum was found in sufficient quantities to warrant belief that the deposits in the Ural Mountains, controlled by the Russian soviet government, would lose their prestige as the world's chief supply of the precious metal, according to the commisisoner's letter. It was said also that considerable quantities of anthracite coal had been discovered by Professor Saderholm, who was described as one of the foremost geologists in Europe.

News of the discoveries was forwarded to Mr. Chekrezi in a cablegram from the Albanian minister of foreign affairs.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Silver Tea and Program of Irish Song and Music at Lyceum Tonight

For the first time in many years St. Patrick's Day is more like a spring day than a wild March day. The green today was the predominant color, it being worn by many. The green flag was thrown to the breezes from the banking house of Burke and Herbert in accordance with an established custom.

A number of celebrations in observance of St. Patrick's Day are scheduled for tonight. At the Lyceum Hall there will be a musical tea, Irish songs and music and a playet by the Columbian Players. A silver offering will be taken, the proceeds to be used for the cemetery improvement fund.

The public is cordially invited to attend. An enjoyable evening of Irish songs and music is promised.

Chinese wear their finger nails very long and sometimes tip them with silver.

The Chinaman is a passionate gambler, He will gamble as long as he has any money or any garment with which to obtain it.

BULBS PLANTED FOR THE DISABLED

When 500 fragrant spring plants blossom around the hospital at Boise Barracks, Idaho, some warm day next May, it will be because members of the Junior Red Cross of Boy Scouts and directed by a landscape artist, have planted 500 Holland bulbs there. This is only one of many things done by the Boise Juniors in their efforts to make more pleasant the days of the hospital patients. Every week they arrange an entertainment which the doctors and the Red Cross workers at the hospital consider one of the most delightful and wholesome forms of recreation enjoyed by the men.

FELT LIKE HIS NERVES WOULD SNAP IN TWO

He Could Hardly Eat or Sleep and Whole System Was Going to Pieces, Says Petersburg Citizen—Now Well Again.

"I didn't believe it possible for a medicine to do what Tanlac has done for me," said George H. Volz, 1517 Halifax St., Petersburg, Va., well-known shoe maker and life long resident of the city.

"For three years I suffered from indigestion of the worst sort, and finally got to where I dreaded to see meal time come round. My whole system seemed to be gradually going to pieces and my nerves were keyed up to such a high pitch I felt like they would snap in two.

"When a man can neither eat or sleep to do any good, he is in a bad way and this was just my condition when I began taking Tanlac. It absolutely beat anything I ever saw and in a short time put me in tip-top shape again. I am my old self now and never felt better in my life."

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

A year ago The Gazette based its editorial on a brief resume of the life of Ireland's tutelary saint. Today, so much water has rolled under the bridge of Time, that other thoughts come uppermost to those who remember the Day and its occasion.

Ireland is undergoing the birththroes of a new era. She has grappled heroically with her problems and even now they are in fair process of settlement. That she will emerge triumphant and take her rightful place in the sisterhood of world-democracies—no one who knows the unconquerable valor and inexhaustible endurance of her people, as we here in America know it—can doubt for a moment.

As we remarked a year ago, wherever there is an Irish heart today there will be music and marching, and the gold harp in the emerald setting will float merrily on the vernal breeze. Wherever there is an Irish tongue, likewise, there is true eloquence; wherever an Irish throat there is true minstrelsy. So we may look for music, and speech-making, and song tonight all over this broad land. The whole nation echoes with "Erin go bragh!"

RURAL LIFE COMMITTEE

There is a Virginia Rural Life committee, organized and set to work by the Co-operative Education Association of Virginia, with headquarters at Richmond. This latter institution has done untold good in the state. But for its work and influence there are many schools that would not have been built, many educational ideals that would not have been achieved, and many other things which lighten and alleviate the ordinary burdens of life would not have come to pass.

The association has organized the Rural Life committee with the object of making brighter and more attractive the life of the agricultural producers of Virginia. It will undoubtedly accomplish much in the direction of relieving the undue pressure of population on the cities. This is much to be desired, as one of the dangers of a democracy is the disproportion between rural and urban dwellers. Safety lies in a sane balance of the two—and the Rural Life Committee is devoted to the task of establishing and maintaining this balance.

Joint Debate on The St. Lawrence River Project

No other feature in connection with the Seventeenth Convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress is exciting more interest than the debate on the proposed St. Lawrence River Ship Channel, the details of which has finally been arranged.

The arrangement of the time, as agreed to by both sides, is as follows: The affirmative will occupy an hour in the opening argument, this time being divided between two speakers, Hon. Henry J. Allen, Governor of Kansas, and Mr. Harry H. Merrick, of Chicago, formerly President of the Mississippi Valley Association. An hour will then be given to the argument for the negative, which will be presented by Hon. Nathan L. Miller, Governor of New York. One of the speakers for the affirmative will then have fifteen minutes for a rejoinder, which will end the debate.

It is reported that supporters of the opposing views on this question are coming by trainloads to back up their respective champions, not only from New York and other States on the North Atlantic seaboard but from Wisconsin, Michigan and other States on the Great Lakes and in the Northwest. The legislators in both branches of Congress are manifesting a strong interest in this debate in which two Governors, one of an Eastern and one of a Western State, will be pitted against each other, and such of them as can slip away from their duties on Capitol Hill will no doubt be present. Many others in Washington, both in and out of official life, are also interested, and it seems certain that standing room will be at a premium in the ball room of the Willard, spacious as it is.

The principal address of the opening session on Wednesday morning will be delivered by the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Ambassador Jusserand, of all of which will be illustrated by moving pictures. Commander Walsh, General Manager of the Dock Board, will speak on the Port of New Orleans; J. W. Worthington, of Sheffield, Ala., will tell of the development of Muscle Shoals; and M. W. Woods, of Lincoln, Neb., will describe a new method of preventing the caving of river banks which has produced remarkable results.

Among the speakers who will be heard at other sessions, are Senator Ransdell, former President of the Congress; Maj. General Beach, Chief of Engineers; A. B. Sheperd, of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Co., Pittsburgh; Major Church, Transportation Engineer, and Julius Henry Cohen, Counsel, of the Port of New York Authority; and T. L. Phelps, Past Supreme Counselor, U. C. T. of A.

Juvenile Delinquents Need Scientific Study

"A much larger proportion of mortal defectives is to be found among deliquents as they appear in court than in the ordinary population, perhaps ten times as many," says Dr. William Healy, Director of the Judge Baker Foundation in Boston, in a report just made public by the U. S. Department of Labor through the Children's Bureau. But Dr. Healy points out that individuals mentally normal are misdoers quite apart from matters of mental capacity and that many feeble-minded people live decently and do their work well. Determingning the cause of criminal tendencies and "deciding treatment that is tremendously influential at the formative period of life," Dr. Healy says, "vastly outweighs in importance * * * any decision of a criminal case that may take weeks in court or perhaps fill pages of the newspapers."

The report, entitled "The Practical Value of Scientific Study of Juvenile Delinquents," declare that all delinquent children need scientific treatment, and that mental tests alone do not suffice to give a true picture of the child's personality without study of his home, companies, play, employment, special temptations and bad examples, quality of schooling and other conditions of environment, taken together with his whole mental life, his lack of knowledge or his misinformation, his habits, secrets, grudges, and ideas.

This report is one of a series issued by the Children's Bureau with the purpose of furthering discussion and development of juvenile court standards. Scientific work in juvenile courts, it declares, is a natural expression of the modern demand for results, since imprisonment alone does not check crime. Numerous examples of cases are given in which complete scientific study, including that of social environment, aided to change the career of a so-called "born criminal."

While this form of study is not confined to the usual technical limits and while its consideration is recommended to "aid the everyday judgements of any who wish to deal understandingly with juvenile deliquents," "It is not to be supposed," Dr. Healy says that it can be carried out "by anybody except someone with interest and training," and he concludes that if lack of scientific students impedes progress more workers must be trained in this field. And if the expense deters from individual studies in the courts, it must be considered what the cost of diagnosis amounts to in the light of the heavy cost of a deliquent career.

SWANSON'S LETTER

(Special to Gazette)

Richmond, Va.,—Much is yet to be done in the Near East before the suffering and misery which thousands of destitute Armenian and Syria children are suffering can be alleviated, according to a letter received by Oliver J. Sands, State Chairman of the Near East Relief from Senator Claude A. Swanson. Mr. Swanson bases the information from which he writes his letter on data gathered in Washington and unqualifierly indorses the work of the Near East Relief.

"It is a pleasure to command the splendid work being done for the relief of the stricken people of Armenia and Syria by the Near East Relief, Senator Swanson writes "while muct relief has been extended by this country, I am sure from information received here in Washington that there remains much to be done. Your organization is doing a most commendable work and I hope will meet with continued success."

The Near East Relief organization is now raising 300,000 in Virginia as its share in the national drive for the support of 110,000 little children being cared for over-seas by the organization until they are able to support themselves.

FOREIGN TRADE CONVENTION

"A Foreign Trade Policy for Americans," will be the subject of an address by James A. Farrell, President of the U. S. Steel Corporation, at the Ninth National Foreign Trade Convention in Philadelphia May 10th, 11th and 12th, over which Mr. Farrell will preside. His address will be the keynote of the campaign for a great business and industrial revival in this country.

This will be the first of the National Foreign Trade Conventions to be held on the Atlantic seaboard. It will bring together the greatest number of leaders in American industry, finance and commerce ever assembled in a nation-wide campaign to stimulate America's export trade to such an extent that the surplus production of American industry over domestic needs will be absorbed and business depression and unemployment ended.

Mr. Farrell will emphasize the necessity for a definite foreign trade policy if America's export trade to the prosperity, not only of American industries but to the public in general.

Financing and expansion of the nation's overseas commerce is the primary purpose of the convention. It will be a working gathering from the opening to the final session.

While only a part of the topics to be discussed at the convention have been assigned to speakers at yet. New York City is already well represented Charles M. Muchnic, vice-president of the American Locomotive Sales Corporation, will make and address on "The Factor of Depreciated Currency in Competition." Wilbert Ward, chairman of the Commercial Credit Committee of the American Acceptance Council, will explain an important feature of export credits under the head of Uniform Commercial Credit Instruments."

Under the general topic of export sales promotion, J. W. Mason, vice-president of the American Surety Company, will talk on "Bonded Service as a Selling Argument." "The Essentials of a Market Survey" will be discussed by William Menkel of the Association of National Advertisers. Every phase of foreign trade will be taken up, either at the general or the group sessions. An important feature of the convention will be the presence of a number of experts on foreign trade who will advise manufacturers and exporters on all problems likely to come up doing business in foreign lands.

HOME BEAUTIFUL

By DOROTHY ETHEL WALSH.

A Table Will Not Only Masquerade as a Dresser, but as a Desk as Well.

My last article, dealing with an improvised dressing table made by draping a small table, has recalled to my mind the way one clever woman managed to have a desk in her guest room when she really didn't have but one desk in the house, and that was safely fixed for life in the living room. A puzzle? Not a bit of it. Just some more of that improvising business!

Now, this woman was having the most beautiful time arranging her guest room to be really comfortable for guests. How many there are which are not so! Her realization of the necessity of there being a place for letter writing brought worry in its wake, for there was to be no purchasing of new articles of furniture. Drawer space was not greatly desired, as for a guest no place for accumulated papers had to be provided. A small table again plays the hero's role in this as well as my last article.

The story might read like this: "Once upon a time there was a little brown wooden table tucked away in a dark corner of a house," but why go further? The artist has told you the rest in to-day's sketch. With its letter holder (the only new purchase in the outfit), does it not make a lovely little desk? Haven't you a small table somewhere that you can so utilize? They are convenient things, these extra desks placed in some quiet corner, even when not used in a guest's room.

WHEN WILL TIMES BE BETTER

Bankers And Mercaants For Diversification

A most practical evidence of the belief in the value of crop diversification is seen in the recent action of the bankers and merchants of Earle, Ark., who, according to the current issue of The Southern Banker Atlanta, Ga. are supplying the farmers of the vicinity of the town with 175,000 strawberry plants sufficient to cover forty acres.

This is done in an effort to encourage the production of berries in Crittenden county as a secondary crop to cotton and the plan was arranged through the local Chamber of Commerce.

The plants will be distributed in one acre lots to forty farmers who will agree to properly plant, cultivate, pick and assort them. It is believed that the plan will prove a sort of object lesson to other farmers in different localities.

Protects From Financial Crooks

"The Georgia Securities Law" is the title of a most comprehensive article by S. B. Blodgett, vice president of the Robison-Humphrey Company, municipal and corporation bonds, Atlanta, Ga. which appears in the current issue of The Southern Banker published in that city.

Mr. Blodgett explains that the Georgia Securities Commission was created to "prevent illegitimate practices, to investigate all investment securities and dealers in the state and to prosecute all violators of the law." The article explains in detail the working of the Commission and emphasizes the need of it which developed because of the growing operations of "crooks and unknown individuals purporting to represent all kinds of get rich quick schemes." The article is a distinctly valuable contribution to financial literature and is also a clear cut explanation of how Georgia protects her people from financial swindling.

Robbery Insurance

A bank robbery seems to the average person a much more serious affair than it really is, and the frequency with which such robberies have occurred recently would seem to threaten the stability of many banks were it not for robbery insurance which all reliable banks carry. However, the people as a rule do not know of such provision against robbery, and Harold A. Nornabell, writing in The Southern Banker of Atlanta for March, urges bankers to explain to the people through the local press just how their interests are protected through a system of robbery insurance.

Mr. Nornabell gives instances where losses of this kind were accepted with a cheerfulness that made the bank officials seem careless, when as a matter of fact, they and their depositors were really fully protected by insurance. Taking the public into the confidence of the bank is said to be due that portion of the public which patronizes a local bank, and it is further asserted that local newspapers would gladly publish the fact that banks in their territory were protected by insurance against robbery, for such a fact is "news" and of real importance to the people.

Burglar insurance, however, is not a new thing, and only the recent instances that indicate the present urgent need of such insurance gives the subject prominence at this time.

Teaching Practial Banking

"What of the economic waste in America due to ignorance in financial matters" asks The Southern Banker, of Atlanta, in its current issue. Such a waste may be avoided by educating our young people in an understanding of financial affairs through a school course in banking Such a course is now being given in the High Schools of Greensboro, N. C., and a Junior Officer of the American Exchange National Bank has been appointed to conduct the course. He uses an approved text book on banking and in a weekly test recently given, the students made a general average of 93.1 per cent, which was conceded to be above the average in other studies. The questions ranged from "What is a Bank" through a description of the Federal Reserve System and many pertinent questions about general banking subjects. This class is able to quickly analyze a bank statement and the information thus acquired will prove of practical value to the young students when they become producing citizens of any community.

The Human Element in Business

"The basic element of success in any business enterprise is its clientele," says Walter Engard in the current issue of The Southern Banker of Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Engard writes most entertainingly on the subject of "Bringing Business into the Bank" and while he directs his observations chiefly to banks and banking, still his conclusions might well apply to any business enterprise. Mr. Engard say further: "Patronage is by far the most important element and forms the basis of the foundation upon which the enduring business institution is erected and, therefore, must be the prinicipal substance of the foundation. Patronage cannot be held without integrity, service, value, courtesy and improvement." The article covers the different opportunities for service which the modern bank offers and describes the advantages of making the people who patronize the bank an important element in creating and sustaining the success of the institution just as is true of all other business enterprises. All business men, as well as bankers, will find much of interest in this article as it is unusual in its review of commercial conditions and clear-sighted in determining what elements contribute to commercial success.

"When Will Times Be Better?"

The pertinent question "When will times be better?" is answered by Bright Williamson, president of the Bank of Darlington, S. C., and former president of the South Carolina Bankers Assoiation, writing in the current issue of The Southern Banker, Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Williamson declares that times will be better only "When and not until we make them better ourselves. Every farmer," he asserts, "must work out his own problems and salvation, and the quicker he realizes this and that no one is going to do it for him, the better off he will be. He will surely receive help and assistanc, but his future will be of his own making. Normal times and 'adjustment' we hear so much about, mean nothing more nor less than that everyone must change his ways and adjust himself to practical methods under boll-weevil conditions. This is the whole problem and all there is to it. When this has been done the adjustment will have been made and we will at once have normal times."

When it is remembered that South Carolina has been hit as hard or perhaps harder than any other Southern state, the remarks of Mr. Williamson, made with full knowledge of all conditions, carry deep significance and should be given attention by all interested in the development of the South.

Have You Made Your Will?

"A will," says Virgil M. Harris, an authority on the subject, "is that which lives after one and tells of the goodness or miserliness of the heart which conceived it" and in an article entitled "Some Facts About the Modern Will" by Johnson H. Pace, trust officer of the Miami (Fla.) Bank and Trust Company, writing in The Southern Banker, Atlanta. Ga. for March, the subject of will making is given expert attention.

That a will is not a simple document but an instrument for good or evil, that it is unlike any other document inasmuch as it is enforced only after its maker is unable to change it, are some of the important points impressed upon the reader. The subject is one well worthy of the consideration of all thinking people.

Better Times Are Near

Improvement in the agricultural, commercial and financial conditions throughout the South is predicted from many sources, but those best fitted to speak with absolute authority on the subject are the bankers in the territory, because these men are in position to watch the trend of the times and to determine the tendency of existing conditions.

The importance of this subject being recognized, The Southern Banker, of Atlanta, Ga. has directed a comprehensive questionnaire to the leading banks in the eleven Southern States and the result is published in the current issue of the magazine.

Bankers in different parts of the states were chosen in order to gather facts which would fit each state as a whole and it is significant to note that, with very few exceptions, the composite opinions expressed indicate that the worst of the hard times has been passed, that the people are meeting even the most difficult conditions with courage and resourcefulness and that a better day is dawning for all.

Bankers Endorse Diversification

The bankers declare that an important factor in the present upward movement was the fact that farmers are diversifying much more generally than formerly; that economic measures were being adopted almost universally; that banks were only being approached for loans to cover essential needs to promote farming activities and that whenever necessary such aid also was being granted.

No Unemployment Problem

While labor was reported as plentiful in the rural districts, no serious unemployment problem was noted and in many places factories and mills were working full time and had not cut forces.

The article is entitled "The Business Situation in the South" and it covers each state in turn and then reviews the territory as a whole and it may be deemed authoritative in its conclusions It is particularly interesting to note that without any attempt at inflation or exaggeration the bankers of the South are optimistic as to the future and greatly encouraged as to conditions in the immediate present.

The Stamp Tax on Bank Checks

"Nobody has a kind word for the proposal to put a stamp tax on bank checks. Even those of lowly estate boasting no bank account voice strong protests, because such a tax makes bank checks, just that much scarcer and harder to get, for them and for every one," says The Southern Banker of Atlanta for March. "Arguments are not needed against a measure to which every one is opposed," continues this article, the main object of which is to urge every banker who has not already done so to write his senator and representatives in Congress opposing the stamp tax in no uncertain measure.

The tax is discussed in detail, its effect on banks and on individuals being reviewed, and Oliver J. Sands, president of the American National Bank of Richmond, Va., who is chairman of a special tax committee of the American Bankers Association is quoted as saying that the matter is a most important one and not even bankers themselves have yet awakened to what the stamp tax will mean. The arguments given against the tax are apparently irrefutable and coming as they do from those who are able to speak with authority, they should be convincing to bankers and to the general public.

REAL SERVICE LOAN FUNDS

Practical service through the establishment of revolving funds set up for relieveing the needy but worthy school children is being performed by children of the Junior American Red Cross in many parts of the country. In Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York in the East, and in California and Washington on the Pacific Coast, this work has been carried forward in a most systematic way. Sums of money are set apart from the Junior Red Cross Service Fund, out of which eyeglasses, shoes, school books and even scholarship may be financed. Money for these things is lent children who would otherwise be compelled to leave school and then the money is paid back in small installments.

In Philadelphia considerable work has been done in providing the scholarships, families being paid monthly sums equal to what a child would earn if employed during school hours, and then when circumstances will permit the scholarship money so advanced is returned to the Junior Red Cross treasury.

The largest single fund for providing eyeglasses and securing optical treatment for school children is that set up by the Juniors of Greater New York. They have provided a fund of $5,000 which is used to aid parents in providing glasses or in having the eyesight of the children corrected. Thus hundreds of children have been enabled to continue their studies in New York and Brooklyn. It is estimated that at least 25,000 children in New York were being held back in their studies because of defective eyesight.

VIRGINIA NEWS
PARAGRAPHED

Richmond—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company in February broke all previous records for coal loading, a total of 53,098 cars being handled, an average of 2,212 1-2 cars for every working day in the month. About 28 per cent of the cars came to the Eastern ports, while 72 per cent went west, the orders from that section being heavy in anticipation of a strike of the miners in the Western fields.

Staunton—Tying a rope around his neck and making it fast to a boat on Middle River a few yards from his home, Stuart Wagner, aged 60, a prominent farmer of the New Hope section, drowned himself early Tuesday morning. His body was found several hours later by two little girls. He is survived by his wife and twelve children. No motive for his act has been assigned.

Harrisonburg — Development of public utilities to cost more than $200,000 was proposed at a meeting of the City Council Monday night. The proposed improvements will consist of a steam or fuel oil auxiliary electric power plant to supplement the present hydro-electric plant, costing approximately $60,000; construction of a 12-inch pipe line from the source of the city's water supply 15 miles west of town, to the new reservoir, at a cost estimated at $115,000.

INFLAMMATION

A process called inflammation some times occurs in tissues that have been injured or invaded by bacteria. Although painful, it is nevertheless one of the reparative processes of the body, and therefore beneficial. Common examples of information are boils, sore throat, and the swollen, painful condition resulting from sprains and fractures. Characteristic symtoms of inflammation are heat redness, swelling and pain.

When tissue has been invaded by bacteria nearly blood vessels dilate, thus bringing an increased supply of blood to the infected part. This extra supply serves to wash the offending substance and at the same time it brings more white blood corpuscles one function of which is to destroy bacteria. From the increased supply of blood the affected part becomes red and hot, and so much blood may come that the vessels further on are unable to carry it away fast enough. Some of the fluid part of the blood is then forced out into the tissues, and the part becomes swollen. Distention of the tissues and pressure upon the nerve endings cause pain, and the injured part new exibits the characteristic symptoms of inflation.

At this point, if the injury begins to heal or the bacterial infection to yield, the extra blood supply is gradually carried off, the blood vessels resume their normal size and the tissues return to their usual condition. If, however, the infection does not yield so quickly, more and more white blood corpuscles assemble and pass through the walls of the tiny blood vesels into the tissues. Here the struggle continues. Some bacteria and some white blood corpscules are killed, and substances are formed which liquidfy these dead cells and also some cells of the surrounding tissues. The resulting fluid is called pus or matter, and in the case of a boil we then say it has come to a head If the infection occurs near a cavity or near the surface of the body, the pus may escape by breaking through at the point of least resistance, and may carry most of the poisons along with it. If the pus finds no outlet it may gradually be absorbed by the blood stream, and healing may result without discharging. On the other hand the germs may make their way into the circulation, this causing the serious condition known as blood poisoning.

Inflamation may be treated by means of hot applications, cold applications or counter-irritants. The effort of heat is to dilate the blood vessels and hence the reparative process go on more vigorously and also makes it possible for the accumulated fluid to be carried away more rapidly. Cold acts in just the opposite way. It decreases the size of the blood vessels so that less blood comes to cause pain and swelling; at the same time it diminishes the number of white blood corpuscles and the nutritive substances brought by the blood. The nature and location of the infection determine whether heat or cold is to be preferred.

Counter-irritants, of which mustard is an example, affect the blood circulation of the spot to which are applied and irritate the superficial nerves which stimulate more distant nerves. Thus it is possible for mustard paste applied to one part of the body to affect the blood supply of another part, through a nervous process called reflex action.

RED GROSS

COLD APPLICATIONS

Cold. like heat, may be used either dry or moist. Bags of rubber or of Japanese paper filled with small pieces of ice are used to apply dry cold. When weight is to be avoided the bag should not be completely filled. After the bag has been filled and the air has been expelled, it should be stopped securedly and wrapped in a towel or piece of flannel, since it is possible for an uncovered ice bag to freeze the skin. Ice bags are easily punctured and care should be taken not to bring pressure upon them, especially when filled with sharp pieces of ice. An ice bag not in use should be thoroughly dry inside and out; it should be put away with enough absorbant cotton inside to keep the surface from adhering. Bags of Japanese paper are less costly than rubber, but less durable. To close them one should roll the top over and then tie it tightly with a string.

Cold compresses for the head are often used for patients with fever or headache; they somtimes quiet the patient who is restless. An old handkerchief or piece of soft linen folded with the raw edges inside may be used as a compress. It should be large enough to cover the forehead. Two compresses at least should be provided and a large piece of ice in a basin. One compress should be wrung so that it willl not drip, and then applied to the head, whlie the other is placed on the ice to cool. As soon as the first compress becomes warm, the second should be applied in its place.

In preparing compresses for the eyes soft material should be used. Each one should be cut only a little larger than the eye itself and should fit neatly over it. Several compresses should be placed on a block of ice while one is applied to the eye, and every few minutes the compress should be changed. If there is discharge from the eye, each compress should be used but once; when used they should be collected in a paper and afterwards burned. Seperate compresses should be used if both eyes are being treated. Definite directions in regard to changing compresses and the length of time the applications should be continued are generally given by the physician.

LOOK NEXT DOOR

Next door to a certain school district where the Junior Red Cross flourishes there is a district not nearly so properous. Said the Junior, "While we are buying a First Aid kits in both their own school buildings, one of the Atheletic Association and one for the Red Cross ambulance and have kept them well stocked. Health work in the school has been vigorously profoted and is still being carried on.

Trough the local Association Charities news came to the Junios of need in an Italian settlement close by and money and food in large quanities were donated.

Picture books, dolls and toys were sent to the children in another district. Besides these local activities the Juniors have contributed generously to the work of the Junior Red Cross overseas.

The program of this school is a happy answer to the often heard remark: "But we have no need in our own commuity." If you have no need in your immediate community—Look next door!

Danville—Rev. John C. Wagner, who on Friday was ordained a minister of the Episcopal Church, is a native of the Alsace-Lorraine and has for some years been associate professor at Averett College here. Bishop Beverley D. Tucker, of Norfolk, officiated at the ordination.

Norfolk—Norfolk is expectd to be the center of activities about to be launched by the Government against rum smugglers who are operating off the Florida coast, and one of whom occasionally makes his way in this direction. It is thought likely this port will be headquarters for a fleet of rum-chasers, which will ply the coast in search of smugglers.

The arrval here of the schooner Emerald with large quantities of whisky on board, and other vessels, believed to be rum-runners, which have recently been sighted off this coast, has caused the prohibition officials to believe that many of these illicit carriers are operating off the Virginia coast. It is expected that war on them will begin within a short time.

Pimples Keep Young Men Down!

They Make Women, Too, a Puzzle! How S. S. S. Stops Skin Eruptions Positively.

Pimples and skin eruptions have a price,—you pay for every pustule, black-head and pimple on your face. Pimples produce prejudice and prevent prosperity. Your heart may be gold, but who wants to kiss eruptions? Pimply men don't look like the owners of anything. Pimply women, too, are puzzles, with no prospects and no power. Young men and women, here's the positive way out. Physics and purgatives will fail. What you need is a scientific blood-cleanser. S. S. S. is one of the most powerful destroyers of blood impurities. You can prove this in a short time. S. S. S. has been passed on by a jury of millions of people just like yourself. It is considered one of the most powerful vegetable blood-purifiers and flesh-builders in existence. That's why you hear of so many underweight people putting on lost flesh in a hurry, why you hear of so many rheumatics being freed from this scourge, with S. S. S. Start today with S. S. S. and see your face clear and your skin get ruddier, your flesh firmer. It will give you a boost in your career. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. ### EIKS' NOTICE

A special meeting of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock to take action on the death of Brother Cecil Hufty. By order of the Exalted Ruler, H. A. Stewart.

WOMEN AND MEDICINE

In Europe, years ago, a woman named Hildegarde wrote a notable book on medicinal plants. In those days the men were too busy bothering about dogmas of religion and medicine, and the study of herbs was thought beneath their notice.

It was the women, however, who mostly conducted the hospitals and cared for the sick, and thus they learned much of he great value. They let the men fight out the questions of theories.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared almost fifty years ago by a woman, Lydia E. Pinkham, did then, and does now, relieve the ailments peculiar to women. It is a vegetable compound and of great value for this purpose. This is proven day after day, and in your own neighborhood, by grateful women who have used it.

Heathsville—The unusual scene of a massive United States mail truck being hauled out of the mud in which it had stuck, by a band of high school boys, putting a "tug-o'-war" training to practical use, was witnessed recently when Professor J. S. Hudnall and about 25 of his students, with a 50-foot rope tied to the front axle, mounted the bank along the roadside in front of the high school, near Burgess store, and when the signal was given towed the truck to firm land.

Every one using it knows just what they are taking. Your own physician and druggist cannot dispute the merits of Tonall as your physician uses daily in his practice some one or other of the herbs, roots and barks contained in Tonall. No wonder they do not recommend other proprietary medicines, as they, like yourselves. know very little about what the medicine with a fancy name contains. The only secret about Tonall is the amount of each herb, root and bark blended together to give such wonderful results.
